
To learn German, or any other language for that matter, is not enough to speak it. It is necessary to learn the basics of the language, but also it is important to watch movies in that same language and read books about that topic. For this reason, I would like to share with you the most comprehensive website on the internet when it comes in relation to learning German for free is called Curs de Limba. This website has a lot of options in terms of different topics including news, grammar lessons and movies in order for you to improve your knowledge about how (or if) they adapt their themes accordingly. Curs de Limba has a number of advantages such as: -Online German Language Course (including audio lessons) -Free German language courses and learning materials -Languages based on the Csíkszentmihályi model: Hungarian, Italian, Spanish and Turkish. There is also a grammar course in English and French for you to improve your skills in the language. The website also has a comprehensive database of movies and books about Germany both in English and Spanish. It's also the fact that they have not only movies but also TV series in different languages such as: German, Danish, Dutch, Finnish, Norwegian and Swedish. There are many free German language courses and learning materials on the website for you to choose freely. The important thing is that these materials are available in English and Spanish. The site also has a video library with two types of videos: 1) Recorded -includes all kinds of movies, including TV series, 2) Streamed -to watch movies online. The website is very simple to use but there are several languages you can choose from, because it has more than 40 languages, for example English, Italian, French, Hungarian or Turkish. Then click on the language that interests you most and then you can choose one of its options or browse through them by categories. This website is fairly comprehensive and easy to use. It offers a wide variety of resources to the learner, no matter what his/her level, including videos at different levels, exercises, dictionaries and texts. This website also has a forum where you can share your comments or ask questions about German language. Curs de Limba has many advantages but it also has one major drawback: the fact that most of these materials (texts and audio) are in German although it is not a major issue for those who know the basics of the language. Another disadvantage is that they do not offer an online course included with them; however, this does not make this site less valuable for learners and teachers around the world.
